Dear City Council:

As noted in the Staff Report, Rincon did the EIR for the City's General Plan. Two of my comments on the General Plan EIR were:

1. Use of old data, up to 15 years old.
2. Alternatives that were not so significant.

As noted in the Staff Report, the City chooses what data to give Rincon to base their work on. While it is the applicant, not the City that pays for the EIR, the City pays indirectly because of staff time. Also, having to extend the timeline increases costs.

It appears that increase costs are needed to provide current information. Is this true?

In addition, I hope Rincon will return with significant alternatives.

Sincerely,
Betty Winholtz

Although I've enjoyed a little drinking game watching city council meetings from my easy chair, in person meetings should be resumed and a hybrid streaming can be continued for those who do not wish to attend in person. The beauty of in person meetings fosters engagement and allows citizens to look each of you in the eye as you cast your votes, as uncomfortable as that may be.

Thank you,
Melodye Bullis

Dear City Council,

Considering election night celebrations attended by Council members and other in-person gatherings, such as Chamber of Commerce events, happening all around Morro Bay and SLO County, it is consistent for City Council meetings to be held in-person. In-person meetings are essential for true public participation and for the overall health and well-being of our community.

Please do not pass resolution A-5 to continue a so-called "state of emergency". The United States government just removed requirements for Covid-19 testing to reenter the country after international travel, providing yet another indication that the Covid-19 emergency is over. If you do pass the resolution, I urge you to also name specific objective metrics to clarify when the emergency is over. Lacking any objective rationale for being in a state of emergency or not, the public is left wondering about the motives for passing resolution A-5 given that, aside from virtual City meetings and some people choosing to continue wearing masks, life in Morro Bay is pretty much back to normal.

Sincerely,
Nicole and Brian Dorfman

Dear City Council:

In light of election night parties, in light of quasi-city activities like Chamber of Commerce events, and in light of private venues in the City being in-person, it is consistent for City meetings to be in-person. Otherwise, the Council appears hypocritical.

This health event is something the world will continue to live with and each person will decide how to manage it for themselves.

Please do not pass this resolution.

Sincerely,
Betty Winholtz

Dear City Council:

My comment is limited to replacement and/or raising of guardrails.

When Cathy Novak was mayor, she was able to negotiate with Caltrans allowing the guardrails through Morro Bay to have a rural look rather than a concrete metropolitan look. That's why we have the wood rails. When Caltrans continued south they gave us the stamped concrete in keeping with that concept.

I encourage you to continue to keep our current look. I would question raising the height of the guardrails unless there are local statistics that demand it. Raising the height would impair the ability to see the ocean., a visual resource.

Sincerely,
Betty Winholtz
